THE FULL MVI FRAMEWORK

WHAT IS THE VRCP?

- a deeper, country-level diagnosis of a country's vulnerability and resilience conditions
- Allows for the identification of key policy and other actions to build resilience, including appropriately costed responses.
- May provide a framework for managing and channeling international assistance to ensure that countries can better manage their vulnerabilities and build resilience to sustain progress and achieve irreversible gains.

THE VRCP IN EFFECT

the vehicle through which countries can move toward the formulation of appropriate policy and by extension the selection and prioritization of investments that are required to promote development objectives while also strengthening the country's internal resilience capacity.

OBJECTIVES OF THE VRCP

- 1/ Provide a detailed, multi-dimensional vulnerability and resilience characterization at national level.
- 2/ Articulate and recommend priority, integrated, and costed interventions for resilience building at national level.
- 3/ Enhance, inform, and contribute to the formulation, implementation, and monitoring cycle of National Development Plans.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES (1)

1/ VRCP development should be country-led and voluntary. Support for VRCP development, should be prioritized for most vulnerable countries as articulated by the index.

2/ VRCP development should be integrated into the National development Planning cycle, and therefore directly contribute to the preparation of National Development Plans, Voluntary National Reviews, Integrated National Financing Framework, existing country's monitoring and evaluation mechanisms.

3/ VRCP development process should use existing national consultative and decision-making mechanisms to facilitate the preparation of the VRCP, using a 'whole of government' approach.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES (2)

4/ VRCP should maintain a medium to long term development perspective, in accordance with the long-term national development plans of countries and should facilitate the use of a system thinking approach to resilience building, which allows a country to identify entry points where investments would have the greatest impacts.

5/ VRCP should be based on evidence, informed by country-led evaluations and data which is high-quality, available, accessible, timely, reliable and disaggregated

6/ VRCP should allow the consideration of structural and non-structural indicators as well as quantitative and qualitative indicators of vulnerability and resilience.

COORDINATION & METHODOLOGY

1/ The MVI Custodian Body (once and if established) will be in charge of translating the set of agreed guiding principles into operational coordination modalities that each country will be able to use and implement based on its own national context.

2/ Those operational coordination modalities will be formulated hand in hand with the development of a VRCP handbook which will also be following the set of guiding principles outlined in this report, and which would enable the provision of detailed guidance to countries in terms of methodology and coordination.

3/ The production of a VRCP Handbook will be delegated to the Custodial Body for the MVI as an early output. The VRCP Handbook will also provide a standard structure for VRCP formulation in order to ensure consistency and comparability between VRCPs.
