An aerial photograph of a vast, flat green landscape, likely a prairie or steppe. A winding river flows through the center of the image, reflecting the golden light of a low sun. The sun is positioned in the lower-left quadrant, creating a bright, circular glow and casting long, soft shadows across the terrain. The river meanders from the bottom left towards the right side of the frame, eventually curving away into the distance. The overall color palette is dominated by various shades of green, from deep forest green to bright, sunlit yellow-green.
